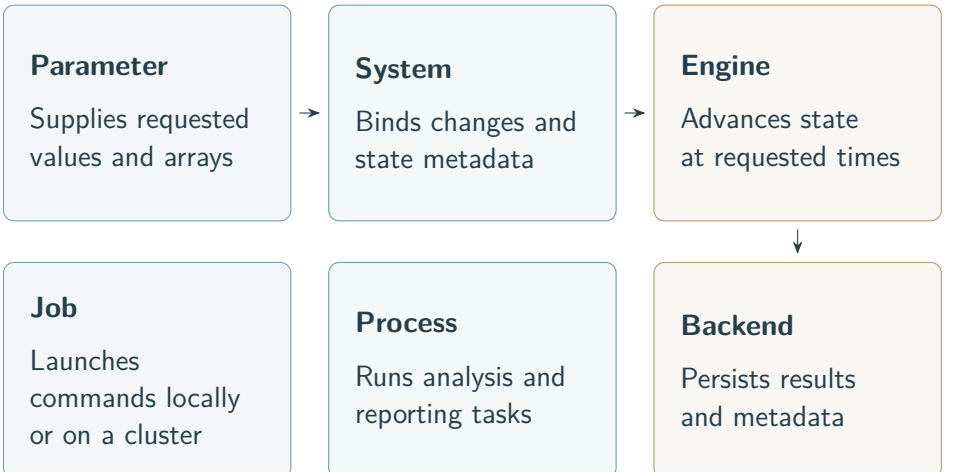
Provider roles in a simulation

Configuration selects implementations with different responsibilities.



Arrows show representative model data flow. Job and process are separate execution roles; configuration and project code determine the full workflow.